"Oman has channelled millions of dollars towards establishing a robust infrastructure for the ICT sector"

Interview with H.E. Dr. Ali bin Amer Al Shidhani,
Ministry of Transport, Communications and Information Technology of Oman

Your Excellency, it is my honour to speak with you today. German companies have been active in Oman since the 1960s and this bilateral partnership remains one of the most significant in Oman's non-oil sector. In light of encouraging recent figures and forecasts regarding diversified economic growth in Oman, how do you assess the current state and the future prospects of Omani-German economic ties?

energy and trade. With our ongoing economic diversification efforts, particularly under Oman Vision 2040, the prospects for Omani-German economic ties are indeed promising. German expertise in areas like Industrial Revolution 4.0 and renewable energy aligns well with Oman's development plans and definitely tips the scale towards increased Omani-German investments and other economic cooperation.

Oman Vision 2040 is currently in implementation, focusing on economic competitiveness, good governance, environmental sustainability and creativity as its supporting pillars.

Oman's economic ties with Germany are strong and multi-faceted; spanning across many sectors, such as healthcare, engineering, renewable
